Belthanos, First Thorn of Kurnoth, is armed with a Kurnoth Glaive.

FLY: This unit can fly.

MOUNT: This unit's Carnelian Greatspite is armed with Razor-like Mandibles and Chitinous Legs.

Nature Aetheric: The Carnelian Greatspite is Ghyranite magic made manifest and where it roams, the land is imbued with life-giving energy.

In your hero phase, you can pick 1 terrain feature within 6" of this unit and roll a dice. On a 3+, pick 1 scenery rule from the Mysterious Terrain table (core rules, 28.1.3) to apply to that terrain feature for the rest of the battle. If that terrain feature already has a scenery rule from the Mysterious Terrain table, that rule is replaced by the one that you pick. That terrain feature is also considered by you to be an overgrown terrain feature.

Mantle of Leaves: Sylvaneth songs speak of the leaf cloak that protects Belthanos, a gift from the Hunter God, Kurnoth.

This unit has a ward of 5+.

Kurnothi War-horn: The melody of Belthanos's war-horn brings forth a surging response from the hunt.

Friendly SYLVANETH units wholly within range of this ability can attempt a charge even if they ran in the same turn.

The Unending Hunt: As the master of the hunt, Belthanos's song is heeded without question.

You can use this command ability at the start of your movement phase. The unit that receives the command must be a friendly SYLVANETH unit. That unit can retreat and still charge later in the turn.

Belthanos leads the eternal hunt that keeps his master Kurnoth's spirit in bloom. Cloaked in evergreen and riding atop a Carnelian Greatspite made of pure life magic, he chases down those who would harm Ghyran so that his howling followers might rip them apart.
